The Decumani Hotel de Charme was originally built during the 17th century and belonged to Sisto Riario Sforza, the last Archbishop of Naples in the Bourbon Kingdom of the Two Sicilies of which Naples was the capital.

In 2008 we embarked on a major refurbishment programme for the second floor, where the Hotel is placed. The hotel has now been fully restored and equipping with all the modern conveniences our guests expect.

A wide lounge, decorated with golden stuccoes and mirrors, testifies the illustrious past of this residence. All of our 42 bedrooms are fully air-conditioned and feature the following: Free Wi-Fi Internet, soundproof windows, flat screen Television with national and International channels, safe, minibar, direct dial telephone and hairdryer.

The Decumani Hotel de Charme is located in the Decumani, in the heart of the old town originally a Greek "polis" and then a Roman "urbs", an area which represents with its squares, streets and alleys, a unique historical, cultural and artistic heritage, as it is testified by the acknowledgment of Unesco, which in 1995 declared the historic centre of Naples "the biggest open-air museum in the world".

La Smorfia bed&breakfast is located on the third floor of an XVIIIth century building in Via Santa Maria di Costantinopoli 30. The facility is served by an elevator on the floor. The baroque palace, with its magnificent staircase and courtyard, inspired the name of the residence. In fact at the main entrance, where you can still see the original stables, the watering stand for horse carriages is still preserved, overlaid by the mocking face of a mask. From there comes the immediate connection with the Neapolitan "smorfia", an ancient local method of choosing lottery numbers through the interpretation of dreams that gives specific numbers to events, people, animals and objects. The furniture is a mix&match of ancient and modern styles with a partial recovery of original materials and decorations by Giuseppe Di Dodo, artist and perfect interpreter of the spirit of la "smorfia". Enjoy a unique atmosphere in the heart of Naples at b&b "La Smorfia", opened in 2017 with the aim of making your stay in town special and unforgettable.
