14th International Meeting on the Rapid Responses to Steroid Hormones

INVITATION LETTER

Dear Colleagues,

it's a genuine pleasure to invite you to the 14th Edition of the Rapid Response to Steroid Hormones Meeting, to be held in this historical and cozy location in Naples. We sincerely hope this gathering provides a fantastic opportunity for all of you to interact, get to know one another, and spark new collaborations.

This meeting is dedicated to celebrating the rapid or “non-genomic” actions of steroid hormones without neglecting their better-known genomic actions. Many studies have now taught us that these mechanisms of action are not exclusive and in both physiological and, mostly, pathological conditions, each can affect the activity of the other. The presence of non-classical steroid receptors such as GPER highlights this aspect. Furthermore, steroid hormones and their receptors regulate signaling pathways responsible for disease not classically attributable to these hormones, indicating how their balance is remarkable for the human body equilibrium.

Our aim is to expand and enhance this vital research field together by meeting, discussing, collaborating, and creating a network that inspires, motivates, and fosters the growth of young scientists.
